Indeed, it is highly probable that before this shows that it is easy to find fault, but that when a General feels the responsibility he will be cautious how he runs any hazard. The loss of a battle would be serious to the defeated party; too serious to be risked. The authorities at Washington and at put either place in peril.

Any bargain, from a protectorate to independence, would have satisfied them. In fact, anything but the restoration of the Union.

It is a significant fact that his army cheered these sentiments, showing still something of a loyal feeling in their breasts. They fight against our Union, but when it comes to a choice of rulers, or even when it comes to a third party pitching in, they can't stand it. The interference, if they had their way, would result in about the same way as when a man interferes to prevent wife-beating-both parties turn on the interloper and give him a most wholesome thrashing. We hope that Pemberton will be retained in command. He suits us bet ter than such traitors as have heretofore led

A Baltimore correspondent of the New York Times has learned from the rebels some secrets. Lee and Davis had a dispute, upon which Lee was about to resign, but a distinguished lady interfered and Lee got his own way. Davis wished Lee to invade Maryland again, which Lee declined to do. Lee's plan is to allow the approach by way of Fredericksburg, whilst he carefully guards every avenue. He is prepared on that route to defeat the Federal army. The correspondent seems to feel wise and knowing; but it is evident that Lee will not several months. allow the approach to Richmond by way of Fredericksburg. It is not probable that the Secesh of Baltimore are half as well informed as they pretend to be.

The rebels have about given up Kentucky. They have had the firmest faith that the people of this State wished to join the rebellion. They have made several experiments on the strength of that empty conceit of theirs. Their last failure to get any recruits has brought them reluctantly to the conclusion that Kentucky is against them. Preston, Woolley, Clay, Buckner & Co. are discouraged, sorry. Clay went off under an impression that the Confeds would keep a foothold in Kentucky; but they are gone, and Clay is gone with themdeserted his old home for a sort of equivocal standing in Secessia. The public are evidently in the dark about what Burnside is doing. One day tells us that he will move upon Fredericksourg instanter; another brings a rumer that he intends going into winter quarters. We learn of the visit of the President, and that a means of conveying supplies by rail has been adopted. If we thought it just, we might complain, as the radicals did of Mc-Ciellan; of the inactivity of the army-of the extraordinary delays-of the necessity of pushing on to Richmond.

We, however, believe that Burnside is doing the best, as McClellan did before him. The delays are, perhaps, unavoidable. At least, we see that, as far as capacity is conerned, the two Generals are on a par.

We have great confidence in Burnside, and can partly understand the difficulties under which he labors. The handling of we presume, with any serious intention of an army of the size of the one he commands, even under the most advantageous circumstances, is no light task. He has accordingly sent a statement to the Secretary of War that it will be utterly impossible to furnish a complete report to Congress - Cin. Gaz.

An Alarming Statement.

A statistical correspondent of the Savan-nah Republican puts forth a series of startling calculations, going to show that the Southern army and the Southern people are alike in peril of starvation. Here are his figures

"If the Government wants whisky, are there no means by which its real agents may be distinguished from the multitude of sub-agents, who, like a swarm of insects, pollute every thing they touch, and, if let alone, will bring mildew and a moral blight in every section of the State by the encouragement of dist Heries? Why no Why not confine the establishment of distilleries to ocalities in which the production of grain is sufficiently great to justify it?

"If, sir, this thing is not stopped by the proper authorities, our army will have to be disbanded for want of provisions, in less than eight months. We have no grain to spare. If every acre of land in the Confederacy, which is safe from the ravages of the enemy, were cultivated in grain at an average yield, it would not supply us with provisions without the most rigid The cavalry branch of economy. service and transportation stock alone consume at least 70,000 bushels of grain per day; while 30,000 bushels of meal and 500,000 pounds of bacon, at regular army rations, is required to sustain the army daily. "To this almost incredible amount we may add one-fourth for waste in transportation and destruction upon retreats, and another fourth for the consumption of the invading forces. Now multiply this amount by 365, and we have 36,500,000 bushels of grain, 182,500,000 pounds of bacon, which amount is absolutely required for the support of the army alone for one year. Independent of this, we have to support a population of about eight millions.

This calculation is made independent of the two-fourths allowed above for waste and necessities have probably demonstrated the consumption of the enemy. These are mathematical facts, and yet there are those who are so blind, or so lost to all sense of propriety, or so devoid of patriotism, as to erect ourage the erection of distilleries in the land at a great risk of being overpowered by the enemy; for I hold that if we are conquered, it will be by hunger and et. Swollen streams and destroyed bridges nakedness, and not by the enemy.

"The public suppose those sub-agents to be the principal agents of the Government, and, therefore, aid them in their hellish designs upon the Government. Distilleries will be established upon every branch in the land. Our soldiers are to be starved, and their families left in destitution chus will be the supreme god of the land, and our negroes led into dissipation and conse-

GEN. SUMNER'S HEADQUARTERS,) Friday, Nov. 28. The ladies from the North, who were visiting friends in Fredericksburg, came over the liver yesterday under a flag of truce. After remaining near headquarters all night, under guard, and receiving a full examination of their cases, they were, this morning, given passes to Washington. They represent the feeling in Fredericksburg to be of the most hostile character. The ladies especially are bitter and malignant beyond expression. Upon the approach of the Naional army they organized meetings and appointed committees who were instructed to visit the rebel commanding General, and implore him, upon their knees, if necessary, not to surrender the city. They prefer-red having their dwellings burned to the NASHVILLE, Nov. 23, 1862. I have Bragg's letter acknowledging the receipt of women and children from Nash-ville by flag of truce, which fixes his presence with his army. I have also a letter from General Preston to his wife, dated in camp November 12, between Chattanooga and Murfreesboro, stating he was going to Murfreesboro with Bragg, Hardee and Buckner that evening. The letter is pathetic and gloomy, though expressing a gleam of hope that the rebel horizon is becoming clearer, and that peace is approaching.

Preston says: "I am waiting with anxiety with my brigade under Buckner for the development of the winter campaign-my heart sunk in leaving Kentucky. If the proscription becomes intolerable, seek shelter in Canada. Look for peace this conflict.

The letter is somewhat desultory, and I select the following items: The writer commands Mississippi and Alabama regi-ments moving from Knoxville to his camp. He lost 120 men by a railway accident Robert Wooley is with him and in a bad humor. James B. Clay bitterly denounces Bragg for disappointing the expectations which he inspired. Clay has no command. Preston says, "Clay is discontented, disappointed and angry as to Kentucky. She has become an open shame, I fear, to our enemies; a scorn and derision even to Yankees, to whom she was betrayed." is reported the enemy have determined to stand on their side of the Tennessee. The military authorities have no confidence in the promise. The Nashville women evince deep anxiety for immediate permits to see their friends at Murfreesboro before they go South. This is an indication. It is said that the rebel force at Murfreesboro has increased to twenty thousand, and that they have sent large bodies of cavalry abroad to obstruct the Cumberland river and interrupt railway ommunications. Our latest scouts say cessful scout made by the Second Virginia Bragg's staff is at Tullahoma, but he is not cavalry, under Col. J. C. Paxton, in the there nor at Murfreesboro. > NEGROES IN NASHVILLE .- We are glad to see that the Board of Aldermen has adopted a resolution having for its object the removal of an intolerant nuisance, viz: the numerous vagabond negroes in our midst. We would not pretend to estimate the number of blacks, of both sexes, and of all ages and sizes, now in our midst, but we can say, without fear of contradiction, that hundreds of them are c ustantly engaged in pursuit of the rebel privateer Alabama. in plundering our inhabitants, dealing in his seat in the present Congress, in order to the soldiers. RUSSELLVILLE, KENTUCKY,) Friday, November 28, 1862. Messrs. Editors: Thanksgiving day passed off pleasantly in Russellville. Roast turkies, chickens, and divers other good hings were devoured with astonishing rapidity, and thanks returned to the Creator for His bountiful supplies and preservance of life and health. The "staff" acknowledged the polite inviation of D. W. Poor, proprietor of the Forest House, to come and dine with him, and, accordingly, one o'clock found the members in the dining room of the hotel, seated around the well-furnished board. Since yesterday we have caught ourself several times wishing that Uncle Abe was only half as devout a Christian as Jeff. Davis, then Thanksgivings would be more in the would require the services of his whole fashion, and if landlords were as considerate as Mr. Poor, we might enjoy roast tur-

Woodward, with his command, said to be twelve hundred strong, and four pieces of artillery, is hovering in the vicinity, and siidewalks were obstructed by dry goods it would not be surprising if a collision boxes, barrels, bales, bundles, &c. We hope should take place at any hour between his see to this, and not obstruct the pavements, but Bruce is watching him like a hawk, compelling ladies to go into the street in and if he does not look sharp, will pounce upon him and peck him most wonderfully before he has time to "skedaddle." The rebel force is moving cautiously, with the Federal authority. If we are not much nistaken, something stirring will happen down this way before long.

We are ever pleased to add a word in testimony of good services rendered to a country's cause by faithful and energetic officers.
